What does it mean to be American?

To be American means to love your country, to work for what you want, and to have moral values. You can not expect everything to be given to you. You have to put in hard manual labor to earn a living. Nothing is truly free. No one is equal. Women and men are separate emotionally and literally. Women must do what their husbands ask and men must love and respect their wives. The "American Life" is living off of your hard work and having the courage to pursue your dreams. It also means to have opportunities no one else really has. America gives people the opportunities to reach their dreams. The "American Life" is living with God in mind. After all the United States was built off of the Bible. Even our founding fathers put God in the Constitution and Declaration of Independence. Jefferson explains God gives us certain unalienable rights, life, liberty, justice. No one can take those rights away. The American life is loving the Lord and giving him your life. America allows people to freely love the lord, so that is the American life.
